Klondike Kate Dies At 77

SWEET HOME, Feb. 21.-(AP) Klondike Kate died at her home here today. She was 77.

Her real name, Mrs. Kate Rockwell Matson Van D[illegible], was known to her neighbors but it was as Klondike Kate, the dance hall girl of Dawson City, that she had a continent-wide acquaintance.

No meeting of sourdoughs throughout the Pacific Northwest was complete without her and she filled the hours with reminiscences of the days of the 1900 gold rush into the Yukon Territory.

SHE WAS jealous both of her name and of her good character and 10 years ago sued a radio program for referring to her as daughter of a gambler. She sued for $50,000 and said afterward she got a "satisfactory" out of court settlement.

Kate Rockwell was born near Oswego, Kas., in 1880. She went to New York as a stage-struck girl and later trouped through the country with touring groups. She was 20 years old when she found herself in Seattle with the gold fever at its height.

She took a ship north and was fond of telling of her life in the dance hall where miners with gold in their pokes paid high prices for a dance and a sip of champagne with her.

FOR THE past 45 years Oregon has been her home, first in the Bend area of the central part of the state and later near Salem, then here.

Her first husband was John Matson, a sourdough, who died many years ago. She married her second husband, William L. Van Duren, 10 years ago. It was he who found her dead this morning.

U.S. bought this ship from the Navy at Pearl Harbor
It was used many years as a floating dock in Honolulu. She was the first Battleship to come to Honolulu Harbor 1895

She Fought With Dewey At Manila Bay

She was dismantled here on year & by the Navy and they towed her out & sunk and used her as a target

Baltimore, Pride Of 1898 Sold for Junk

Not many ship arrival notices are carried in the news these days, but the fourteenth naval district has lifted the shipping news ban to announce the arrival at Pier Seventeen yesterday of the famous old fighting ship from Dewey's squadron, the USS Baltimore. The Baltimore was towed from Pearl Harbor yesterday for delivery to her new owners, in what was probably the last voyage of the gallant old veteran of another war.

Once the pride of the navy, the Baltimore has lain rusting at her moorings since 1922, when she was decommissioned. At that time, as a unit of the Pacific Fleet mine force, she was under command of Capt. (now rear admiral) C. C. Bloch, present commandant of the fourteenth naval district. Lying within sight of the Kamehameha Highway, she has long been an item of curiosity to passing motorists — and a strange contrast to her powerful sisters in our modern navy.

Launched in '88

Launched in 1888, the Baltimore became the gleaming apex of the storied "Armored Cr[illegible] Squadron." Capable of turning up a fabulous 20 knots, she was armed with four eight-inch and six six-inch rifles and 14 rapid-fire guns, and provided the navy with one of its most formidable threats to enemy sea power.

In 1890 she became flagship of the Atlantic Squadron, and the following year, flying Admiral McCann's flag, she headed the Pacific Fleet. Lying in Honolulu Harbor in 1898, the Baltimore, commanded by Capt. N. M. Dyer, was ordered to rush ammunition to Admiral Dewey's forces at Hong Kong.

Joining his command, she played distinguished part in the battle of Manila Bay, receiving shell hits of which traces remain today.

Last Orders

And now the old veteran received her last shipping notice! The navy department announced last October that she was up for sale and would go to the highest bidder. When sealed bids were opened in Washington on Dec. 16, the top price was found in the offer of The Hawaiian Machinery and Salvage Corporation, Honolulu firm in which J. C. Walker, R. J. Newton, E. J. Greaney and Arthur H. deRocher are partners.

What disposition will be made of the Baltimore has not been revealed by her new owners, but it was admitted that even legal transfer of ownership could not completely sever the old ties, for by one clause of the sales agreement the navy retains first option on any of her salvaged gear which may now be put up for sale.

They are towing me out of the harbor
Bound for my last brief trip.
A derelict tramp of the Navy
A condemned wornout battleship.

No cheering of great crowds applauding,
No flaunting of banners so brave
As when in my pristine fair beauty
I launched on the rough ocean wave.

All silent, my powerful engines
That once beat hot in my breast,
Gone! are the guns from the turrets
That flashed at a Nation's behest

Many brave hearts have I sheltered,
Great hopes o'er the ocean have borne
'Neath a flag I have loved and have honored
Which now from my flagstaff is torn.

Once the proud home of an admiral
And leader of great ships of war—
Decrepit now, battered and useless,
I am crossing my last

VETERAN ISLAND SHIP BURNED—Young Brothers small motor ship, Moi, a veteran of 27 years of service between Oahu and Molokai, burning after she had been soaked with gasoline and oil and towed five miles out to sea Friday afternoon. The 60 foot, 90 ton vessel was built in Tacoma, Wash., in 1923 for Young Brothers. She sank at 6:30 p.m. (Advertiser photo by K. Shimogaki)

Venerable Motorship Moi Sent to Bottom

The traditional three long blasts of farewell echoed acro-- Young Brothers' pier 21 Friday afternoon as the small motorship Moi, veteran of 27 years of service in the islands, was towed out to sea and burned. She did not sink until 6:30 p.m.

After removal of the engine, the 60 foot, 90-ton ship wa saturated with gasoline and oil and towed five miles out to sea by the tug Makaala.

HER BOW encircled by a huge paper lei, the Moi was set adrift after William De Castro and William Mock threw over a dozen lighted flares into the fuel soaked cabin.

The Moi was pulled away from pier 21 at 11:35 Friday morning and by 2 p.m. her cabin and decks were a mass of flames.

BUILT IN 1923 at Tacoma, Wash., for Young Brothers, the Moi was immediately put into service between Oahu and Molokai, a run which she continued to make until just after the war. During the war, she was, according to Young Brothers officials, the only ship carrying passengers between the two islands.

Usually making the trip in eight hours, rough weather sometimes kept her plowing through the channel for 24 before finally reaching her destination.

THE SEA BURIAL Friday was under the supervision of Capt. William Pavao, whose ship, the Huki, accompanied the Moi and the tug Makaala, captained by Francis Lum Leong, to the final resting place.

As she was pulled out of the harbor, stripped of motor and whistle, the two tugs answered the shore farewell with three long blasts in her stead.

CABLE SHIP COMES TO END OF HER VOYAGE—The first time the Commercial Pacific Cable Co.'s SS Dickenson had her picture in The Advertiser was July 7, 1923, the day after her first arrival in Honolulu. She had been launched the preceding Feb. 17 at Chester, Pa. Today her picture appears probably for the last time. For the SS Dickenson (renamed the Kailua) was towed out to sea the other day and sunk by a torpedo from a Navy submarine.

Tom Nelson, Pioneer Packer, Dies of Pneumonia at Age 84

Tom Nelson, 84-year-old dean of Columbia river salmon packers, died of pneumonia here Sunday.

He was the last of the old-time packers who had grown up with the salmon canning industry.

For more than 60 years Nelson was a striking character on the Columbia river. He was born in Bergen, Norway, August 30, 1863. At the age of 12 he became an office boy in Bergen, a job that did not suit his independent nature. At 15 he left the office for the sea.

Two years later he was a seaman on the sailing ship Palmyra when it sailed into the Columbia, 150 days out of New York. Nelson liked the Oregon country and remained here. He was employed for several years in building railroads.

In view of his future interest in a cannery that obtained fish only from gillnetters, it was ironical that Nelson's first activity in the fisheries of the Columbia was the construction of a fishtrap in 1883. In the following year, then only 19, he built bridges on the Snake river and in Montana and one in Ainsworth, Wash.

Returning to Oregon at the age of 20, Nelson became president of the Longshoremen's union, the first of its kind in the northwest.

In Portland he married Miss Annie Meyers, a native of Bremen, Germany, who survives him.

In the spring of 1885 Nelson was a boat puller for a fishing firm in Brookfield, Wash. He continued to spend the winters at his home in Portland until 1897 when he moved to Astoria.

Nelson was among the organizers of the Union Fishermen's Cooperative Packing company and in 1891 became its secretary, a position equivalent to manager except that the plant superintendent shared authority with the secretary in some matters.

Before joining the new cannery Nelson established a fish business at Point Ellice.

The task of running the new cooperative cannery was difficult due in part to the opposition to them. Competition was rough. Nelson always considered his direction of the cannery for some 20 years as the outstanding achievement of his life. He resigned in 1921 and soon became associated in the operation of Point Adams Packing company.

Nelson was the sprightly Viking, having a good time to the last. Except for the jitter bugs he was the liveliest dancer at Suomi hall even after his golden wedding celebration which occurred on March 21, 1942.

Nelson was for seven years manager of Hanthorne cold storage and for one year served as "outside superintendent" or production manager of Sanborn Cutting cannery. He also was "outside superintendent" for Columbia River Packers' Association, Inc., in the days of George H. George and Fred Barker.

During the first World war, Nelson was appointed pilot commissioner and served as a "minute man" speaker during bond drives.

He is survived by three sons, Martin V., Portland; Thomas W., Gresham and Lawrence Nelson, Astoria; three daughters, Mrs. Carlton (Ann) Welborn, Portland; Mrs. Dorsey (Laura) Dent, Halfway and Mrs. Kenneth (Martha) Schussman, Halcyon, Calif, and 11 grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements, under direction of Hughes-Ransom mortuary, will be announced later. The funeral is planned for Wednesday afternoon.

Six From Oahu Killed in Japan Army Plane Crash

Six Oahu men were among the 40 persons killed in the Thursday night crash of a fully equipped Douglas C-54 transport near Tokyo, believed army officials disclosed this morning. There were no survivors.

In addition to [illegible] a Korean national whose home was in Honolulu, five Oahu army officers and two enlisted men were killed. The plane was completing a flight from Kimpo, Korea.

Maj. Lee

The United Press, in a dispatch from Tokyo, listed the Oahu dead as follows:

Maj. George H. Lee, 1132 N. School St., Honolulu.

T-4 Nam Gee Chung, 1442 Makuna place, Honolulu.

Capt. Joe Ogilde, Waipahu

Staff Sgt. Frederick S. F. Chu, 15 Fork lane, Honolulu.

T-4 Thomas C. Y. Kim, 1011 Poepoe place, Honolulu. (Kim's father is Richard Kim)

# # #

The disaster, the worst in the history of the occupation, occurred when the plane struck a peak 30 miles southwest of Tokyo. All bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Maj. George H. Lee, about 42, worked for the Hawaiian Pineapple Co. before enlisting in the army as a private during the war. He held a master of science degree in civil engineering from the University of Southern California.

Thomas Kim

Fred Chu

Friends in Honolulu say that Maj. Lee had planned to arrive here Sunday and that he already had sent some of his belongings here. He has no relatives in the islands but is believed to have had two brothers living in Korea. The major was born in Korea.

Sgt. Thomas C. Y. Kim, 1011 Poepoe place, was a member of the army's swimming team from Korea that visited Honolulu last December.

His mother, Mrs. Soon Nee Yoon, said her 22 year old son planned to be home and out of the army by June 30, his birthday. He entered the army in 1945 after working as a draftsman at Pearl Harbor. He was graduated from Leilehua High school, Wahiawa, in 1943.

A brother, Stanley, 26, was killed in an automobile accident while serving in the army on Canton island in April, 1946.

The youth is survived by his mother; a brother, Vern, 16; a sister, Alice, 24, and his stepfather, Doug Chan Yoon.

Staff Sgt. Frederick S. F. Chu, 28, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yee Chu, 1254 Pali lane, two brothers and five sisters.

Sgt. Chu was graduated from McKinley high school in 1941. He worked at Pearl Harbor until 1945 when he entered the army. In August, 1946, he volunteered for duty in Korea.

He was en route home to be discharged when the crash occurred. His father is a grocery salesman for American Factors.

Sgt. Nam Gee Chung, 24, of 1442 Mokuna place, was also on his way home for an army discharge.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Doo Ok Chung. Mr. Chung is a tailor at the Army-Navy YMCA.

The sergeant entered the army in 1945. He was a member of the army's Korea swimming team that came here in December. He was graduated from Leilehua high school in 1940, where he played on the basketball team.

He is survived by his parents, a grandmother, Mrs. Anna Chung; four sisters and three brothers, one of whom is Capt. Nam Young Chung, now in Korea.

The others killed in the crash were identified as:

Phillip A. Adler, correspondent for the Detroit News; Col. Theodore B. Anderson, commander, 475th fighter group and deputy commander of the Kimpo, Korea, air base from which the plane took off.

John W. Kelly, Baton Rouge, La., and Herman H. Hardy, Berkeley, Calif., both civilian technical experts.

Lt. Col. Hudson M. Schieber, pilot, St. Louis; Capt. John E. Sloan, co-pilot, Belton, Mont.; Lt. Carlos H. Contreras, Navigator, Indian Orchard, Mass.; Tech. Sgt. William H. Lentz, engineer, Houston, Tex.; Staff Sgt. Alton W. Moore, radioman, Durant, Okla.

Col. Adna G. Clarke

A citizen of integrity passed this week, rich in years, in experience and in friendship. He was Col. Adna G. Clarke who during 79 years was soldier, legislator, educator and a civic worker in numerous fields, in all of which his influence was strong and fine. Col. Clarke has been a veritable institution in Hawaii for decades. His concern with good citizenship was as unflagging as his zeal in the interest of national defense. His preoccupation with youth and the affairs of youth was as intense as his ardent interest in making the streets and highways safe for persons of all ages.

Perhaps a bullet that felled him in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war, inflicting a wound from which he made a remarkable recovery, helped influence his civilian career. Certainly the slug—American-made although fired from an enemy rifle—became a symbol which he wore on his watch chain for the rest of his life. It fell slightly short of sudden death to the then young captain but it incapacitated him for a long period during which he meditated at length on the facts of life and of death as represented in a jacketed bullet. The colonel first came through Hawaii enroute to the Philippines as an officer of the 20th Kansas Regiment and the 20th remained a part of his life thereafter. Fred Funston, famed later as a general, then was colonel of the regiment.

A Republican since James G. Blaine was candidate for President in 1884, Col. Clarke successively became lawyer, soldier, educator, traffic expert and legislator. In the Legislature of 1937 he voted 366 times in 366 roll calls. At the university, besides instructing and setting youth an example in conduct, he sponsored the Military Order, Warrior of the Pacific. This, characteristic of Col. Clarke, honors young men who qualify as riflemen.

Col. Clarke will lie in the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific in the inauguration of which he was a firm supporter.

A. Anderson Pioneer Tuna Packer, Dies

Arthur A. Anderson, veteran Columbia river fish packer who pioneered in the tuna industry here, died at his home at Smith lake, Warrenton, Friday after having been in ill health for several years.

He was 62. Anderson suffered a severe heart attack in December, 1947, and since then had been unable to work.

A native of Portland, where he was born May 7, 1891, Anderson came to Astoria with his parents, Albert and Andrea Anderson at the age of eight.

With the exception of the World War I period when he served in the army, Anderson had been engaged in the fishing industry during his entire career.

Started As Youth

He began buying fresh fish as a young man, and after his discharge from the service, established the Andersson Fish company at the foot of Fourth street. The name of the firm was changed in 1931 to the Columbia River Salmon company.

In 1938, he started the first tuna packing plant on the Columbia, continuing in the meantime to pack salmon and other types of fish.

In 1945, he built new canneries here and in Ilwaco. He had earlier acquired the fish packing interests from the Elmore, Bacon and Megler families. He sold the major interests in his business in 1949 to John T. Tenneson of Seattle but retained a heavy interest in several canneries including the Columbia River Salmon company.

Anderson was married in Astoria July 29, 1917, to Emma Rosalie Kalm of Portland and with her established their home here. They moved to their present home at Smith lake near Warrenton 20 years ago.

Anderson was a member of the Astoria Country club; the First Presbyterian church; the Washington Athletic club of Seattle and was a charter member of Clatsop Post, American Legion.

Surviving him are his wife, Emma, and a son, Arthur A. Anderson Jr., both of Warrenton, and two brothers, David and Joseph W. Anderson, both of Astoria.

Services will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at the Memorial chapel of the Hughes-Ransom mortuary. The Rev. Paul C. McFarlin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate.

Concluding services will be held the same day at 3:30 p. m. at Riverview Abbey in Portland, with vault entombment to follow.

Serving ass honorary pallbearers will be James Hope, A. W. Norblad, Anton Sorensen, Henry Barbey, Steve Eide, Floyd Wright, Douglas Hager, Sherman Lovell,

Unprecedented Honors Planned

Dean, Hero of Taejon, Leaves U.S. Army Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29 (UP)—The "hero of Taejon" steps down tomorrow.

Maj. Gen. William F. Dean retires after 32 years of military duty that brought him his country's highest decorations and his men's adulation.

Dean will close out his career with full military honors on a Presidio parade ground in the shadow of the 19th century building in which he first went on active duty with the Army.

The Army is pulling all stops to honor the 56-year-old deputy commander of the 6th Army, even to the unprecedented extent of awarding him the Combat Infantryman's badge.

Only one other general officer, "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, has ever received the Infantryman's Badge. The Army awarded it to Stilwell on his deathbed wish.

DEAN WILL WEAR the badge over the Congressional Medal of Honor he won for "conspicuous gallantry" at Taejon, Korea, on July 20-21, 1950, shortly before his capture by the North Koreans.

The badge will be pinned on his tunic by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff.

The story of Dean's action in the first dark days of the Korean war when his 24th Infantry Division was thrown into the breach to slow the onrushing North Korean Reds is best told by the citation accompanying the Medal of Honor.

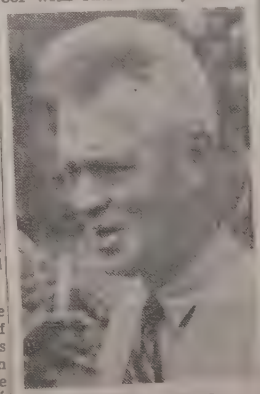
"IN COMMAND of a unit . . . as yet untried in combat; faced with a ruthless and determined enemy . . . he felt it his duty to take action which to a man of his military experience and knowledge was clearly apt to result in his death.

"He personally and alone attacked an enemy tank while armed only with a hand grenade. He also directed the fire of his own tanks from an exposed position with neither cover nor concealment while under observed artillery and small arms fire.



GENERAL DEAN

"When the town of Taejon was finally overrun he refused to insure his own safety by leaving with the leading elements but remained behind organizing his retreating forces, directing stragglers, and was last seen assisting the wounded to a place of safety."

TAEJON WASN'T the only instance of heroism on the part of the muscular, craggy-faced general. During World War II in France he personally led a tank attack on foot and later, an infantry attack. For this he won the Distinguished Service Cross.

The units will include a 64-man honor guard of his old 24th Division brought to the United States for the first time since the Division was formed in the Far East in 1941.

Harold Frank Handy

NO. 6563 CLASS OF 1920

Died October 8, 1959, at Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, California, aged 62 years.

HAROLD F. HANDY, son of Frank Allen and Lucy Maria Handy, was born in Belmont, Vermont, June 24, 1897. He graduated from Springfield High School in 1915 and entered the University of Vermont. He left the University during the middle of his sophomore year to enter the U. S. Military Academy as an appointee by U. S. Senator Dillingham.

Although ranking high in his class, Harold's love for horses prompted him, upon graduation in 1920, to choose the Field Artillery in which he served with distinction throughout his career in all capacities from battery executive to division artillery commander.

Upon graduation from the Field Artillery School, Fort Knox, Kentucky, in 1921, Harold was assigned to the Hawaiian Islands. The Islands proved to have a strong allure for Harold for he not only returned for two additional tours in 1929 and 1935; but also picked his bride there, Eleanor Carlson, whom he married in Honolulu December, 15, 1930.

During the first half of his career, Harold's off-duty time was largely devoted to improving his horsemanship and training remounts. His success in this field is well evidenced by the many trophies he won in horseshows which played such an important role in the post life of the "Old Army." His outstanding horsemanship finally won him the coveted assignment to the Advanced Course in horsemanship at the Field Artillery School, Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Just as with all members of the Class of 1920 Harold served many years as a junior officer; but these were not idle years, for Harold's extensive experience as a battery executive officer and battery commander made him an authority in the training and handling of field artillery batteries. During the early days of WW II, while serving on the Staff of the Field Artillery School, this experience played an important part in the development of many young artillery officers and the techniques which made artillery the justifiable dread of all our WW II enemies.

Harold was primarily a field soldier and except for a tour at the U. S. Military Academy as an instructor in mathematics and attendance at the Command and General Staff School, the Army Language School, and the Strategic Intelligence School, the bulk of his service was as a line officer. After the close of WW II, Harold remained in Germany with the U. S. Army of Occupation and helped organize the U. S. Constabulary. He returned later to Europe in 1950 where he served with the American Embassy in Rome as Chief of the Army Section of the U. S. Aid Mission.

Harold's path crossed mine frequently during our military careers as well as after he retired to the beautiful Monterey Peninsula.

During WW II, Harold was a Group

After leaving the service, the Heinekes went to Oneonta, New York where Dutch was the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. In 1951 he became a field representative for the United Services Life Insurance Company and the family moved to Vincennes, Indiana.

Death — coronary thrombosis — came without the slightest warning on January 11, 1960. Surviving are his widow, his two sons, his mother, and his brother, Paul.

Horse seining in the Columbia River near Astoria in 1910, was a scene witnessed by B. R. Locke of Seaside, Ore., when he first came to that part of the Northwest. It made real horse sense back then and the only thing that kept it from continuing was that the horses legs weren't long enough to go deep enough. Locke, who supplied this shot presently resides in Seaside. He ran the Postal Telegraph office in Astoria in 1910. Mr. Kaboth, whose son George, lives in Seaside owned the horse seiners.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Dickson Pratt [illegible] Mrs. Pratt was Mabel Carlson, [illegible]

Mrs. Carlson recalled. "It was a great camp. Some of the best times were had in the guard house than in guarding the camp."

Mrs. Pratt mentioned that she has a diary that she kept from the first day of the war until peace was declared which she proposes to have her grandchildren read as a capsule of history.

Under another of the Colonial Room's dozen chandeliers, a World War I reunion was taking place. Typical casual comments at a Rotary Club meeting in 1953. Brig. Gen. Kendall J. At the Carlsons' party they were exchanging memories of that war.

Mrs. L. A. R. Gaspar and Mrs. Herbert M. Richards shared news of their daughters, the former Mariette Gaspar and the former Mary Richards who were [illegible] friends and are [illegible] married and living on the Mainland.

Mariette and her husband, the Rev. Murray K. Trelease, and their three children are now more or less at home in a three-story, unfurnished house in Seattle where he is canon to the dean of the Episcopal cathedral.

The Trelease family moved to Seattle this summer, following several years in Alaska where he served as the Episcopal Bishop of the Yukon.

Mrs. Gaspar was accompanied to the Carlson's party by her younger daughter, Lily, who is home for a couple of weeks on vacation from her job in San Francisco.

The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want . . .

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters . . .

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake . . .

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over . . .

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.
